Year of Grace

It's nice to be back to a fairly ordinary week. Christmas and New Year's Masses along with a couple funerals make for a rather full schedule. I finally had time to finish opening Christmas cards. Many thanks for your generosity to me and to the parishes during this season, especially at the end of what had been such a difficult year for so many. I especially ask that you continue to pray for me and for one another as we embark upon the Year of Grace 2021.

I'll always laugh a little when I see the phrase "Year of Grace"—which appears in the liturgical Ordo, the official list of Feasts for the Church's calendar—because one year, when another priest read that, he became convinced that the Pope had made a special declaration that this would be a Year of Grace, much like we are currently in the Year of St. Joseph or like the Year of St. Paul back in 2008 and 2009. He had even started to formulate a plan for a parish mission on the theme of sanctifying grace and other events focusing on the Sacraments. A bit of the wind came out of his sails when I informed him that in fact, every year is called the Year of Grace in the Ordo, and the Pope had made not made any special proclamation.

I do often reflect on that phrase, though, and how fitting that every year should be a year of grace for us and should be recognized by us as a year of grace. No matter what else happens this year, the most important and consequential for us in this life and into eternity will be how much we are able to receive and cooperate with the grace and gift of God. Human actions are only able to go so far. And we are all too familiar with how destructive human action can be at times, but it is the working of God that will endure forever. The Kingdom of Christ will have no end, even while earthly kingdoms rise and fall.

God is faithful. He does not change, and He has not changed His mind about His plan for us. God has decided that this is and will be a year of grace for us, a time when His assistance is ready for those who call upon Him, a time when the Gift of Himself continues to be made available to us through the Sacraments of His Church. Will we respond to His Grace and meet any challenges with the confidence that comes from God, or allow the thorns of worldly anxiety to choke the word of God in us? "In the world, you will have trouble. But take courage; I have overcome the world" (John 16:33).

Word of Life

"When we encounter Christ, experience his love, and deepen our relationship with him, we become more aware of our own worth and that of others. His love for each person is cause for great joy, and growing understanding of this priceless treasure motivates us to share his love with others. Our lives are often changed by the witness of others; so too, others' lives may be changed by our witness and authentic friendship with them."
