Father Michael's Musings

Eleven years after the 13 British colonies declared independence from their mother country, the nation had to figure out a way in which to endure.

Representatives from each of the new states gathered to rework the loose Articles of Confederation, but they went over & above their mission.

Then came forth with something different, a new Constitution for the nation. It was innovative and radical and had to be ratified by the states, and that was controversial.

One of the things that some had the most problem with were the first 3 words. They did not like "We the People.." they wanted something more along the lines of "We the States..." They did not, ultimately prevail.

The founders wanted to make something clear, concise and beautiful, the first definition of the United States is "the People," and the first word of our nation is "We." Unity and equality are given as the very foundation upon which liberty is built.

When we pray for our nation, when we ask God to bless America, we are not praying for one side or another, we are not praying for us against them, we are praying for the people, all the people.

Election seasons, divisive forces, disagreements, arguments, we have always had them, but we have also, always had the Fourth of July, one shining moment when we can remember and celebrate our unity.

May the gift of last Thursday lead us on!
May God bless America.
